

australian ~ canadian studies

- a journal for the humanities & the social sciences -

vol. 6, no. 2
1989

---

table of contents

---

Editorial		1
Feature Articles
Dorothy Seaton	Colonising Discourses: the Land in Australian and Western Canadian Exploration Narratives	3
Jack Warwick	Re-reading the Origins in Quebec	15
Richard Davis	Vision and Revision: John Franklin's Arctic Landscapes	23
Diana Brydon	The Dream of Tory Origins: Inventing Canadian Beginnings	35
Helen Tiffin	Not Wanted on the Voyage: Textual Imperialism and Post-colonial Resistance	47
Paul Bartrop	Indifference of the Heart: Canada, Australia and the Evian Conference of 1938	57
Robert J. Jackson	Canadian Government and Politics in Comparative Perspective: An Overview	75
John Dargavel	Conceding to Capital: Resource Regimes in the Forests of British Columbia and Tasmania	93
Review Essays
Doug Ooram	Family Traditions	109
Brian Edwards	Border Work in a Canadian Context	114
Taking Issue
Malcolm Alexander	The Importance of Non-scientific Approaches to Comparative Studies	119
In Review		125
Notes on Contributors		145
Call for Papers ACSANZ '90		147

---

notes on contributors

---

Dorothy Seaton recently returned to Canada after completing her Master of Arts degree at the University of Queensland.

Jack Warwick is a Professor at York University who specialises in nineteenth-century French Canadian writing and relations between the two Canadian literatures.

Richard Davis is editor of Rupert's Land, A Cultural Tapestry (Wilfred Laurier, U.P., 1988), a collection of essays which analyses the place of Rupert's Land in Canadian development. He teaches at the University of Calgary.

Diana Brydon is a Professor in the Department of English at Guelph University, Ontario. Her most recent publication is a study of Christina Stead. She is co-author, with Helen Tiffin, of a forthcoming study of Australian and Canadian literatures.

Helen Tiffin is an Associate Professor at the University of Queensland. Her most recent publication is The Empire Writes Back (RKP, 1989), co-authored with Bill Ashcroft and Gareth Griffiths.

Paul Bartrop teaches history at the Royal Melbourne Institute of Technology.

Robert J. Jackson is Professor of political science at Carleton University. He has published several books on Canadian politics and is a regular visitor to Australia.

John Dargarvel is a forester who researches forestry policy. He is currently with the Centre for Resource and Environmental Studies at the Australian National University.

Doug Owram is a leading Canadian intellectual historian. He teaches history at the University of Alberta.

Brian Edwards teaches English at Deakin University.